Dahlias

I have many fine varieties not listed here. They are easy of culture and prefer a light loam, well dressed and cultivated, Dormant bulbs may be planted from May 1st to June 15th. Plant $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 feet apart; three to four inches deep; lay the bulb down, many amateurs try to stand them up, and give the sprout end too little covering. If properly covered, in well tilled soil, nearly all will grow. Cultivate thoroughly until they begin to bloom, sprinkle coal ashes on the foliage, when the dew is on, to prevent the bugs blighting the buds.
